When submitting a manuscript to the Galen Medical Journal (GMJ), authors must agree to and provide the following statements to ensure transparency, ethical integrity, and compliance with the journal's policies:

1. Authorship

All authors listed on the manuscript must have made significant contributions to the work. This includes involvement in the conception, design, execution, analysis, or interpretation of the research, as well as drafting or revising the manuscript for important intellectual content. Each author must approve the final version of the manuscript and agree to be accountable for all aspects of the work.

2. Originality and Plagiarism

The manuscript submitted to GMJ must be original and not under consideration for publication elsewhere. Authors must ensure that their work is free from plagiarism, including self-plagiarism, and that all sources are appropriately cited. Any form of text, data, or ideas borrowed from other works must be properly attributed to avoid ethical breaches.

3. Disclosure of Conflicts of Interest

Authors must disclose any financial, personal, or professional relationships that could be perceived as potential conflicts of interest in relation to the submitted work. 4. Ethical Approval

For research involving human participants, animal subjects, or human-derived materials, authors must confirm that the study was conducted in accordance with the relevant ethical guidelines and approved by the appropriate ethics committees. A statement detailing the ethics approval, including the name of the committee and the approval reference number, must be included in the manuscript. For studies that received an exemption from ethics approval, the exemption details must be provided.

5. Consent to Participate and Publish

Authors must confirm that informed consent was obtained from all human participants (or their legal guardians in the case of minors) involved in the study. This includes consent for participation in the research and, where applicable, consent for the publication of identifying information. Authors must ensure that privacy and confidentiality are maintained according to ethical standards.

6. Data Availability

Authors must declare the availability of the data supporting their findings. This includes providing access to the data upon reasonable request or depositing data in a publicly accessible repository. A data availability statement should be included in the manuscript, outlining where and how the data can be accessed.

7. Funding and Acknowledgements

Authors must disclose all sources of funding that supported the research. Any assistance from individuals or organizations that contributed to the work but do not meet the criteria for authorship should be acknowledged appropriately. This includes technical support, writing assistance, and financial contributions.

Authors are responsible for ensuring that the manuscript is prepared according to the journal's submission guidelines. This includes adherence to formatting requirements, proper citation of references, and the inclusion of all necessary sections as outlined in the Instructions for Authors. Authors must also ensure that the manuscript is free from errors and is ready for submission.

By submitting a manuscript to GMJ, authors agree to comply with the journal's policies, including those related to ethical publishing, peer review, and the handling of any issues that may arise during the editorial process. 10. Author Contributions Statement

Authors must include a statement in the manuscript detailing the specific contributions of each author to the research and writing of the manuscript. This statement helps clarify the roles of each contributor and ensures transparency in the authorship process.

11. Corrections and Retractions

Authors agree to cooperate with the editorial team in the event that corrections or retractions are required after publication. This includes promptly addressing any errors or ethical concerns that are identified and working with the journal to correct the scientific record as needed.

12. Agreement with Article Processing Charges (APC)

By submitting this manuscript, the authors agree to the following:

- The corresponding author acknowledges that if the manuscript is accepted for publication, an Article Processing Charge (APC) of 1000 GBP will be required. This fee is necessary to cover the costs associated with open access publication, including peer review, editing, and hosting the article on the GMJ website.
- The corresponding author confirms that they have the necessary funds to cover the APC, either personally or through institutional support. They also acknowledge that the payment of the APC does not influence the editorial decision process and that the manuscript will undergo a rigorous peer review process.
- The APC is payable upon acceptance of the manuscript. The corresponding author understands that failure to pay the APC will result in the manuscript not being published.
- In cases of financial hardship, the authors may apply for a waiver or discount by providing justification during the submission process. Waivers or discounts are granted at the discretion of the GMJ editorial board and are based on the availability of funds and the justification provided.
